Ali Mili

Ali Mili holds a PhD from the University of Illinois and a Doctorat d'Etat from the University of Grenoble. He served as Professor and Department Chair at the University of Tunis El Manar, and currently serves as Professor and Associate Dean at NJIT (USA), and as Part-time Faculty at Harbin Institute of Technology (China). He served in various teaching and research functions in the past, including in Algeria (Oran Es Senia, USTHB), Australia (Adelaide, Queesnland), Austria (Alpen-Adria), Canada (Laval, McGill, Ottawa, Bell Northern), China (Fudan, Harbin), Japan (NII Tokyo), Palestinian Territories (Hebron, Gaza), USA (Texas A&M, UT Arlington, CMU, Honeywell, Rutgers, ORNL, WVU) and Sudan (SUST Khartoum). He published ten books, four in Arabic (Software Engineering, Discrete Maths, Programming, Data Structures) and six in English (Verification, Specification, Fault Tolerance, Program Construction, Software Reuse, Software Testing), two of which (Reuse, Testing) are translated to Chinese.